~~CIA Deputy Predicts No Soviet Revolt~~

ROBERT WORTHY Dec. 21 (AP) — The deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency said Tuesday night Russian leaders are promoting "a world revolution which is unique in the history of dictatorships."

Gen. C. P. Cabell said the free world is facing a military threat and the question is "how, where, and when the Soviets will strike." Cabell told the Tarrant County Medical Society that "Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and his aides want to dominate the whole world."

"Theirs is the language of total war. They have a consistency and a single-mindedness about promoting a world revolution which is unique in the history of dictatorships."

He said there is no basis for the belief that the Communist leadership of Russia could be overthrown from within. "We do not see any current threat which is apt to topple the present leaders," he added.

The CIA official said the Soviet Union will meet its ambitious industrial goals without much domestic pressure for more consumer goods.

This means, he said, that Soviet Russia's economic and military power "will continue to grow at a rate which presents the free world with a serious threat and challenge."

Cabell said the theory should be ruled out that a demand for more consumer goods will hinder the Soviets from achieving their goals. He said this was because the Moscow regime "can count on the loyalty, however unenthusiastic, of the Russian people."
